

PROFILE

I discovered my love of computers and "programming" when PCs were rare, and the "Internet" was still in its infancy.

I have come a long way since then, but I will always love to code – because I take pride in creating practical, fault-tolerant, and robust apps. My long years of IT and Management experience gives me a firm foundation to take up any challenge, and to develop and apply dynamic systems/methods to obtain the best end-results.

I have a calm and flexible personality with good leadership qualities. My inter-personal and social skills help me to understand and pick-up what people want quickly, and act on it for a positive outcome.
